"I infer, then, that it is rather a formal meal? "Decidedly formal-in fact, I may say it is a rigidly military dinner." 'Military! how military?"

"Well, you see General Lee sits at the head of the table, and Colonel Chilton at the foot, and everything is done in red tape style. "Red tape at table! I don't understand you. Please explain. "Certainly, General Lee never carves and never helps-all that is left to Colonel Chilton-but General Lee asks the guests what they will have; they tell him, then he issues his orders, and Colonel Chilton executes them. That's all." "Go on, go on!" opening his notebook; "give me an example-tell me exactly how it is done. "Suppose, then, that we have beef -we generally have beef." Grace is said by the chaplain, then General Lee raps on the table with the handle of his knife and says; "Attention!" Everybody is silent. Every eye i

'Beef for Captain C—, By order of General Lee. R. H. CHILTON, A. A. G. And this absurd story went the rounds of the Southern papers. After the war, Gen. Lee rarely smiled, and one may say never laughed outright. Yet he was neither sad or unsociable. But there was that about him which made it well nigh impossible to believe that he could ever have given completely away to feelings of mirth and indulged in a real fit of cachincation. Such, however, was the fact, and it occurred at a time when, of all others, one would have least expected it-in the retreat to Appomattox-and General Henry A. Wise was the occasion of it. On the second or third day of the retreat, General Wise, who had long desired an interview with General Lee. discovered him at a distance, and immediately hastened toward him. While he was vet a great way off, Gen. Lee, who happened at the time to be alone, turned and began to stare in a way that was most unusual with him. As Wise drew nearer the stare became intense and mixed with wonderment. A few steps more, and still Gen. Lee gazed and gazed wonderingly, as if he had never seen Wise in his life. Amazed and puzzled at General Lee's unmistakable ignorance of his identity, Wise advanced quite close to him and said rather stiffy, "Good morning, General Lee." It was very early and very

Barely sufficient at the time (so incensed was Wise), the explanation eventually proved ample, for General Wise now laughs at this incident as heartily as any one, and often relates t himself, while it may well be doubted whether ever again in life General Lee found either the occasion or the disposition to relax his wonted gravity.-From Our Monthly Gossip, in the March Number of Lippincott's Maga-

The Freshet. Accounts from Fayettevile, up to Tuesday morning, are to ale effect that the river is still rising. To give some idea of the enormous quantity of water on this freshet, we will state that there is about 50 feet in the river at the Fayetteville landing, where there was less than 2 feet at one time during the dry spell of last Fall. Considerable damage has already been sustained and much more is feared from this high freshet.

Supreme Court. The following, among other cases, came up in the Supreme Court at Ral-eigh on Tuesday: State vs. M. McI. Taton et. al., from Bladen. Attorney-General Hargrove for plaintiff. No counsel for defendants. Continued Henry King, Executor, vs. Wilming

Mr. John E. Smith, a highly respected and much esteemed gentleman. and a Magistrate of Limestone Township, in Duplin county, in this State, died from an injury received by the falling of his horse through a bridge near the Court House, while returning home from his official duties, on Monday, the 3d instant. He lived only five days after the accident, and died on the Saturday following. He left a wife, two children and a large number of relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

Correction. Rev. J. C. Hiden, pastor of the First Baptist Church, in this city, who was in attendance on the Educational Convention in Raleigh, states that he was misunderstood by the News in its report of his remarks on Thursday, relative to the press of this city. He did not say that the Wilmington papers had not published anything in reference to the matter, but that no editorial comments had been made, simply because the matter had not been put before the editors as it should have been by those most interested in the suc cess of the movement. We cheerfully give place to this correction, believing, as we do, that Mr. Hiden's remarks were misconstrued on the occasion alluded to.

The Fire Last Night. About 11 o'clock last night a fire was liscovered issuing from the store of Messrs. H. Stolter and N. Bremer, corner of Front and Ann streets. The alarm was promptly given and the members of the Fire Department, with their engines and truck, were soon on the spot. Three streams of water were brought to bear, but the building burned freely and was totally destroyed before the flames could be checked. The origin of the fire is unknown. but there is good reason to believe that it was incendiary. Those first on the ground state that a key was found n the lock of one of the doors, with the handle twisted off. The fire burned so rapidly and so fiercely that nothing whatever was saved. The stock in the store, valued at probably $2,000, was all burned; on this there was insurance for $1,500 in the Frankin, of Philadelphia, Messrs. Taylor & Giles, Agents.

The upper floor of the building was occupied by Mrs. Platt, a widow lady and, sad to relate, she lost everything. & Co. Her loss will probably reach $800 or $1,000, with no insurance, as far as we could ascertain.

The building, which was of wood and nearly new, was probably worth about $2,500. It belonged to Mr. F. Stolter, but we could not learn if there was any insurance on it .- Daily Jour-
